When Hurricane Harvey hit Texas and Louisiana, it left in its wake many victims. Shelters that were already full worked with rescues to move their current residents out, making room for Harvey’s survivors. Shelter animals were then sent to rescues and foster homes further north.

And that’s where Amy’s story began. A nurse in Claremont, OK, she’s a disaster and emergency volunteer with the Medical Reserve Corp. A lifelong animal lover with 5 dogs and 3 cats, Amy jumped at the chance to help when the Corp sent its call for volunteers.

Amy was part of the team that assisted the Bixby Oklahoma Humane Society animal shelter, cleaning cages, vetting dogs, and preparing them for airport transport to northern locations.

As her shift was ending, volunteers were placing dogs and cats into carriers, then lifting them onto the airplane that would fly them to a new life. But when Amy returned the next day, one carrier remained.

...when Amy returned the next day, one carrier remained.

When Amy asked why, she was told there was something wrong with the dog’s back. He was not healthy and not adoptable. Amy had a sinking feeling as to the dog’s fate. She opened the cage door that said, ‘ARNIE’.

Peeking out was a small Boxer mix. To Amy’s shock, she saw that the dog’s back legs were useless, but Amie was still dragging himself toward her with his front legs and wagging his tail!

Amy’s heart broke into a million pieces. Only a year old, he was obviously in poor health but Amie didn’t seem to know that.
As you know, The Mosby Foundation’s mission is to help dogs in peril. The recent devastation caused by natural disasters has left thousands of people and their pets at risk. Thankfully, many organizations sprang into action to help the people affected by these catastrophes.

With the help of many organizations and dedicated volunteers, we were able to provide two fully-loaded 18-wheelers of food and supplies for the thousands of animal victims endangered by Hurricane Harvey in Texas. Currently, we are having a fund drive to help the small struggling Humane Society in Vieques, a small island that is a part of Puerto Rico. Having extremely limited resources for normal operations, the influx of dogs following the storm’s devastation has overwhelmed and rendered them desperate.

We request that our supporters please consider a donation of any size to help these at-risk animals. If so, please mark your donation “Vieques dogs”. Your help can literally mean the difference between life and death. With your support, we will continue to “spring into action” to help not only these dogs, but other dogs in dire need as well.

In support of canines,

Harvey. She was relieved and surprised that her own animal crew fully embraced their newest member, even the cats!

Then she talked to Mutt Nation volunteers about how to get help for her dog. They told her to get in touch with The Mosby Foundation. “They are a very loving organization,” they told her.

And that’s exactly what she did. When we saw Harvey’s condition and that adorable face, we, too, were smitten, and made a substantial grant towards his new life. Without the support of our generous donors, who wanted to help dogs in need affected by Hurricane Harvey, this grant would not have been possible.

“I don’t know what I would have done without The Mosby Foundation,” Amy gushed. “It was an answer to a prayer.”

The day that Amy dropped Harvey off for surgery, he was still wagging his tail, licking her, and trying to walk. “Harvey’s just bound and determined that nothing is going to get him down,” she said, her admiration for him plain to see.

The surgery was a difficult one but it didn’t get in the way of Harvey’s strong will to live and enjoy life. The vet had to place one rod in his leg and clean up the other one. It will take three months before Amy will see an improvement in Harvey’s walking. In six months, he should be in good shape.

But Harvey didn’t know all that. He just wanted to be with his human. Although he had been under anesthesia for 2½ hours, when he saw Amy, he started wagging his tail. Harvey did so well, the vet let Amy take him home that night!

Just 48 hours later, wearing the Elizabethan collar, Harvey was still wagging his tail and trying to walk. “I’ve never seen anything like it,” was all Amy could say.

But the story doesn’t end there. Amy is in a doctoral program and writing her dissertation on reducing test anxiety with dog therapy. As part of her dissertation, she will bring therapy dogs in to play with students before they take their exams. She wants to see if it helps students lower their stress and get better test scores.

“Harvey will be perfect for this!” She exclaimed. “He’s got such a sweet disposition and he’s so smart and loving.”

Amy is over the moon excited about Harvey’s new career. His natural compassion and gentle nature will be a huge plus for stressed out students. And let’s face it, any job that allows Harvey to wag his tail and hand out dog kisses is a winner!

“Thank you, Amy, but here’s what we think is amazing: That these two souls somehow called to each other without ever knowing it. What’s amazing is how the humane society kept a dog that would normally have been slated for euthanasia. What’s amazing is that same dog was placed aboard a bus and sent to the Bixby Oklahoma Humane Society animal shelter.

And there, in the midst of crisis and chaos, a dog that didn’t know how to be sad, waited his turn for happiness...and found it.”
Gimme Shelter
We are helping so many dogs, we do not have space to list them all!

Spartacus, Hastings, FL
Spartacus was recently diagnosed with Lymphoma. His mom reached out for assistance for him to receive chemo treatment. Thanks to The Petco Foundation & Blue Buffalo Pet Foods, he is getting the required treatment and is getting back to his old self again!

Newman, Muskegon, MI
When Newman was re-homed, he was limping and had breathing issues. The doctor discovered a 4-6 week old fracture, that had stopped his leg from growing, needing amputation. Additionally, he was diagnosed with brachycephalic syndrome causing his breathing difficulties. The Petco and Mosby Foundations assisted with his surgeries and he is now on his way to a happy, healthy life!

Buddha, Winter Park, FL
Buddha had complications during gastric bloat and torsion surgery causing PVC heart arrhythmia and pancreatitis. We contributed to his treatment, and he is now stable and on his way to a full recovery!

Barney, Antioch, TN
Due to risk of spreading cancer cells, a swift surgery was needed to address a tumor that had developed on Barney’s anal gland. He is thankful for generous donors who made it all possible so he can continue a happy, healthy life!

Harvey, North Hollywood, CA
Harvey, The Marvelous Houdini “Love Bug”, is an assistance and therapy dog to his human mom who rescued him at only 3 months old. They then learned that Harvey had lymphoma. Through grants from The Petco Foundation & Blue Buffalo Pet Foods, he is receiving treatments and getting back to his old tricks.

Malachi, The Colony, TX
Malachi was on antibiotics for a dew claw injury; however, with its location and his active lifestyle, re-injury was just a matter of time. Thanks to our amazing donors and supporters, Malachi can now get back to regular activity, free from pain and worry!

2Pawz, Mesa, AZ
Blood transfusions to help with 2Pawz’s Immune Mediated Hemolytic Anemia (IMHA) were needed, in addition to constant monitoring and care from his mom and doctors. Thanks to the generous supporters of The Mosby Foundation, he is getting stronger everyday!

Bear, Spring Valley, CA
From Bear: “I was having trouble with my eye when my doctor determined that my third eyelid needed to be removed. Now I am pain free thanks to my friends at The Mosby Foundation.”

Oliver, San Leandro, CA
Oliver is doing well after his bilateral cataract surgery. We were happy to be able to contribute to his surgery, and he is seeing much better these days!

Duke, Eugene, OR
Thanks to all of our generous donors, Duke’s tumor on his jaw was safely removed. He has recovered well and is doing great!

Gracie, North Hills, CA
Gracie was really sick with an intestinal bowel obstruction and dehydration. Thanks to our donors, she was able to have the surgery to get back on track.

Mikado, Holiday, FL
Mikado’s person, a disabled USAF Desert Storm Veteran, had many personal hardships. When he learned of Mikado’s cancerous anal gland tumor, he immediately sought assistance to save the life of his canine companion. We assisted with treatment so the two of them can share many more memories together.

Fancy, Winder, GA
A serious tooth infection was jeopardizing Fancy’s quality of life and the vet determined that all of her teeth needed to be removed. She can now grin again thanks to her friends at The Mosby Foundation.

Precious, Washougal, WA
When Precious was viciously attacked by another dog, her jugular vein was severed and she lost a lot of blood. Her recovery was looking grim and the veterinarian didn’t have much hope for her survival. Thanks to The Mosby Foundation donors and grants, Precious received the lifesaving surgery and has made a full recovery.

Mater, Happy Valley, OR
Mater’s chipped molar was causing him a lot of pain and keeping him from his happy and active lifestyle. With our help, he received the treatment he needed and is back to his old self again.

Shady, Garland, TX
Shady’s mom had successfully fundraised for his chemo & radiation and just needed help with the last weeks of treatments. The Mosby Foundation was glad to assist.

Coco, Williamsburg, VA
Coco is recovering nicely after a large mass was removed from her belly. Her mom is so grateful for the assistance she received from The Mosby Foundation so her baby can feel better again!

Reese, Chesapeake, OH
The Petco Foundation & Blue Buffalo Pet Foods grants and our generous donors made possible the removal of a tumor. Reese is now on his way to a full recovery.

Mack, Ravenal, SC
Mack received treatment for heartworms thanks to the generous donors of The Mosby Foundation! We have encouraged his human mom to please keep him on heartworm preventive in the future.

Kiki, Modesto, CA
Kiki’s human mom lost her husband, and they had to move in with a close family member. Shortly after settling in, Kiki developed tumors on the right side of her torso which needed to be removed. Thanks to the generosity of The Mosby Foundation donors, Kiki and her “mom” can begin the healing process they so desperately need.

Buck
by Susan Vincent

Here at The Mosby Foundation, we hear a lot of stories about pets. Sometimes we choose not to tell a pet’s story because the story itself is too graphic and too sad.

That was the case with Buck, a beautiful Husky in Texas. When I heard Buck’s story I was moved to tears and extremely angry. I knew his story was a powerful one but neither Carole nor I thought we should tell it because of the abuse Buck received.

But Buck wouldn’t let me go. He woke me up at night and my throat would choke with tears. His was a story that needed to be told. But how could I do that without alienating our compassionate readers?

After thinking about it (a lot), Carole and I decided to share an overview of Buck’s life with you. We know how incredibly caring you are towards animals, and we know you would want to send prayers to Patricia who is grieving.

Patricia found Buck chained in a stable at a so-called ranch. Just 4 years old, he lived his whole life on this chain. Beaten almost daily, Buck survived on rats and mice.

Patricia notified animal control and the dog was surrendered to her care. Many horses were also removed. It took some time for Buck to trust her. But once he figured out that this human meant him no harm and loved him, he blossomed.

In chronic pain and constantly limping, Patricia would take Buck to five veterinarians before the problem was diagnosed. His left leg had been fractured in three places and had healed incorrectly. Buck also had a tumor.

To say that Patricia adored Buck is putting it mildly. Even though she was the sole breadwinner in her family, (her husband was recovering from two heart attacks), she was determined to find the money to have Buck’s leg removed.

Her vet, also moved by the abuse Buck had endured, worked with her and basically agreed to do the amputation at cost. Patricia raised a chunk of money with a GoFundMe account and The Mosby Foundation helped her with the rest.

Ecstatic, Patricia could not wait for her baby to be out of pain. But a three-hour surgery turned into a 10-hour surgery. The tumor had wrapped itself around anything and everything, making it difficult to remove.

Sometime during the night, after the surgery, Buck’s soul lifted from his battered body and crossed the Rainbow Bridge. Patricia was devastated. She blamed herself for not staying with him through the night. But grief and powerful love do that.

My feeling is that Buck crossed the Rainbow Bridge a very happy dog. For the first time in his life he was whole and without pain.

But what makes his passing tolerable is that Buck knew love before he died. Real love; love that surrenders all, gives all, and expects nothing.

How many dogs in Buck’s situation get to cross over with that kind of joy settled in their souls?

I ask that you say a prayer for Patricia and for all the Bucks in this world. The honor these dogs have lived is unfathomable to us.

The love we can send them, even now, is immeasurable.

If you would like to help The Mosby Foundation help the Bucks of this world, please make a donation in Buck’s memory. 🐾
Last October I e-mailed you that Fiasco’s cancer had returned and I had decided not to put him through another surgery and chemo treatment. Fiasco was not expected to make it to the new year. Well!!! Here it is July 2017 and Fiasco is still with me. His quality of life has not diminished. He is happy and healthy and continues to baffle his veterinarian. At his last check up, his cancer has not progressed since it was diagnosed. Please continue to keep Fiasco in your prayers. That is the only thing that is keeping him with me!

Have a Blessed Day!

I cannot thank The Mosby Foundation enough for their extreme generosity. It has been such a heartwarming and rewarding experience to work so diligently at getting this lovable girl back to being a healthy, happy puppy. The Mosby Foundation’s gift has given Hope the second chance she so desperately needed to find peace, love, and a forever home. As she begins her journey on the road to recovery, there is nowhere else I’d rather be than walking beside her. Please accept my deepest gratitude for loving animals as much as I do and for helping us to reach our goal.

Sincerely,
Jillian and Hope

I am absolutely floored by The Mosby Foundation and Petco’s generosity! I have goosebumps and am next to tears. This little dog, Piper, is my whole world and you are helping so much to help get her feeling like the wild redhead she is. Please let the board and everyone else involved know how thankful I am! Thank you again so very much. I still can’t get over the generosity!

I would like to take the time to say thank you to The Mosby Foundation!!! I’m writing to let you know that the Chemo treatment will start next week. My sister and I are planning on helping by giving a donation when Snickers is finished with his chemo.

Thank you from the bottom of my heart and Snickers heart. We love what you are able to do.

Again Thanks.

To all friends at The Mosby Foundation, the vet said everything looked good with Barney’s drain and to come back in 3-5 days. I called today for the results of the CORD. His tumor is a malignant adeno-carcinoma. They got clean margins but not as big as they would have liked. Typical expectancy is about a year. I turned down radiation and chemo for palliative care. He and I wouldn’t be happy with extended vet stays in kennels. We plan on making him a bucket list and living life until he’s hurting. Blood work needs to be done every 1-2 months. Chest X-ray in 6 months. Not the best news but not horrible. We are both stubborn and strong willed so we will just fight on.

On Any Given Day
Moses Lake, WA

Almost three years later, Annette still found it difficult to ride in a car. If she saw a fender bender, she would have a panic attack. A friend suggested she had PTSD, post-traumatic stress disorder. “I thought that only happened to soldiers,” she said.

Annette did some research and learned that victims of PTSD often are helped with service or therapy dogs. It just so happened that a friend of hers was fostering a six-month old German Shepherd puppy that she thought would be a good fit for Annette.

When Annette walked into her friend’s house, she sat down on the couch. The puppy immediately got up, jumped up on the couch, and looked directly into Annette’s eyes. “That was it,” she said with a smile. “I knew that Sherman was the one.”

“IT was like he was saying, ‘You’re getting too anxious, mom. You need to take a deep breath,’” Annette told us.

But it wasn’t just Annette who benefited from Sherman’s compassionate nature. Sherman helped other victims of drunk drivers through Annette’s work with MADD, Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

Annette has seen Sherman zero in on a little boy, who survived a car crash because of a hit and run drunk driver, playing with him, rolling over belly up, all while the little boy whispered secrets into his ear. (Sherman doesn’t do belly up for just anyone.)

Sherman has helped families in the courtroom who have to remain silent while evidence of wrongdoing is presented. For one father, seeing pictures of his son’s bicycle helmet buried into the grill of a van nearly had him in a blind fury.

Sherman calmly walked up to where the man was seated and offered his paw. Startled, the man reached out and stroked Sherman’s head, allowing him the time he needed to regain control. ‘Sherman knows who the victims are. He knows who needs him,” Annette said.

Annette also began to notice that the slight bend in Sherman’s foot had become more pronounced. So, she took him to the vet who ruled out any previous break. He then referred her to Washington State University Veterinary Hospital. There, Sherman was diagnosed with Carpal Valgus Limb Deformity. No cause was ever determined. However, arthritis was forming in his elbow and wrist.

If left untreated, the disease would take over and amputation would be required. To fix the problem both the ulna and radius bones would have to be cut, pins inserted into them, then an external structure much like scaffolding would have to be created.

Annette also noticed that Sherman’s right foot was slightly turned out, but she didn’t think anything of it at the time.

She took Sherman to puppy training classes at Petco, then later, adult dog training classes. Sherman excelled at all the classes. It was like he was born for it, as if those classes opened a door for Sherman, allowing a natural talent to bloom.

It wasn’t long before Annette realized how much those training classes had groomed Sherman for a larger role in life.

Whenever she felt anxious, she would call Sherman and rest her hand on his paw to ground herself. It didn’t take Sherman long to know before Annette when she felt anxious. He would come to her and lift his paw and place it on her knee.

Fortunately, her granddaughter would fully recover and she would have no memory of that terrible day. But for Annette, “It’s a day my husband and I can’t forget. We cannot get those images out of our heads.”

She and Wyatt suffered neck and back injuries, deep bruising on their wrists, and internal bruising on their internal organs. The driver had no insurance and no driver’s license. Even after Annette’s insurance paid for their hospital expenses, the couple was left with $24,000 of medical debt.

Then there would be a 12-week follow up. WSU will adjust the pins to straighten the bones, allowing for new bone growth. The surgery, as you can imagine, is very expensive.

Because Annette does not like to ask for help, she tried to raise the funds herself by selling items. She quickly learned that her efforts were not enough. Annette then set Precious is the sweetest, most loving dog (she thinks she is human.) Precious’s jugular was severed and she lost a lot of blood because of a dog attack. My daughter and I quickly applied pressure that ultimately saved her life. The vet didn’t have much hope, but we didn’t give up. She is going to make a FULL recovery. Thanks to The Mosby Foundation for helping us fund her lifesaving surgery. We don’t know how we could go home without her big loving eyes and wagging tail. I can’t express the gratitude I have for all the help you all gave us. Thank you just doesn’t cover it!

Everett, WA

Oh thank you so very very much! I cannot begin to express how much this means to me and my Jackie. This honestly brought tears to my eyes because it’s been such a fight trying to get her help. I have my own guilt for having financial issues preventing me from being the best dog mom I could be. This couldn’t have come at a better time. Bless you and your organization. Thank you from my heart. thank you.

Vicki & Demi
Murfreesboro, TN

Demi is now 12 1/2 (we think) and still battles Cushing’s but continues to do fairly well with her daily meds. The vet has been so wonderful for the past 5 years. The average time most dogs live past diagnosis is 3-4 years. It’s now been FIVE years and she’s still with me, my sweet trusting companion and the calming presence on my bed every night. I know she never would have made it this far without your support. Blessings and gratitude for all you do to in memory of Mosby!

up a GoFundMe page and began seeking out other foundations for help. That’s when she found The Mosby Foundation.

In the meantime, Sherman kept working alongside Annette with MADD. At the end of a day, Annette would take him to the dog park to run and play. But even that proved too painful for Sherman. His leg hurt so much he began to snap at other animals.

For now, Sherman stays away from the dog park, and is on anti-inflammatories to help reduce the pain.

When Sherman’s application crossed The Mosby Foundation’s desk, we knew we wanted to help. This dog’s work with victims of drunk drivers was so important. How could we say no? The world needs Sherman’s natural talent for comfort and healing.

Annette was thrilled that we would help her. “I am so grateful to The Mosby Foundation for making this happen,” she told us. We encouraged her to also seek out other organizations to further cover the surgery’s expense, which she did.

We’re glad to say that other non-profits have joined in to help Sherman continue his work. His surgery has been scheduled for later this Fall. Annette is thrilled!

Penny is home! Penny greeted us like nothing had happened! They said she woke up from anesthesia happy! Her biggest complaint is the mandatory 2-week collar! It’s beyond obtrusive in our cozy house, but she’s managing. Thank you for your prayers and support! They have been a great encouragement. I’m so grateful for the skilled vets who navigated her early care with expertise and compassion.

Thanks for everything!
Janey Goude
Lexington, SC

This would not have happened without The Mosby Foundation’s substantial contribution,” a grateful Annette told us. We’re just happy to be part of the financial team that will allow Sherman to continue his very important job.

We know all too well that on any given day, anyone of us could be riding along enjoying life, only to have tragedy strike. That’s why Sherman needs to be there, for the boy on his bicycle, for the father whose love is bound up in rage, and for all the victims who seek release and respond when a dog places his paw on their knee.
